He was unshaven and unclean, seedy He was unshaven and unclean, seedy and very shabbily dressed. He stood disconsolately on a street corner. He had had a bad day of it and was wondering where there was a corner where the nickels and dimes would flow more plentifully. As he was about to cross the street he noticed a kindly, motherly-looking woman approaching. Assuming looking woman approaching. Assuming a most woe-begone, destitute expression he took his stand on the curb and tentatively proffered his greasy palm. She produced a nickel and said:

"It's called Lovers' rock." "Who told you about it?"

Irving Johnson, a drummer who is well known to many of our merchants, was in town yesterday, stopping at the City Hotel, where the Times man heard him tell a few new stories that he had collected on his last trip.

"I am glad to see," said Mr. Johnson, "that Barre is right up-to-date in eigars as well as in other things. I have been hunting for a Wadsworth Bros.' Chicos in the last half dozen towns, and did not find one until I went into C. H. Kendrick & Co.'s drug store this morn-"Oh, everybody about here knows

"It is high tide," he said aloud. "In six hours it will be at the ebb." "That will be midnight."

"And it won't be ebb again before tomorrow noon," he muttered ruefully. "The hour we all rest after bathing." He mentally cursed the tides, which came and went at such inconvenient hours. He was looking out over the in a pleasing distress. He felt encour water, computing how long he would have to wait before learning whether he was to be happy or miserable. BR. CHASES Blood 述 Nerve Food A New Cure For Paralysis of Dr. Chase's Treatment in Curing Patients Thought Incurable and Given Up to Die.

Paralysis is the result of a wearing-out or injury to some part of the human machinery, which reduces the power to such an extent that one or more organs fail to perform their proper functions.

Dr. Chase's Blood and Nerve Food revitalizes the blood, increases the circulation and forces new life and energy into the paralyzed parts.

When the trouble is confined to the blood and nerves, Dr. Chase's Blood and Nerve Food will make a cure without any other remedy, but it often happens, and especially in Locomotor Ataxia, that the kidneys, spine, bladder and the bowels are affected, and in such cases Dr. Chase's Kidney Food and Liver Food should also be

You then have a complete building-up treatment that gives new vitality and action to every part of the body.

the sun was not looking down from directly overhead.

He was tempted to ask his question in the evening on the plazza, but he believed that if he did he would meet with a refusal. So he counted the days and the hours, even the minutes, till the tide would ebb at from 4 to 6 in the afternoon

Fortunately for him the moon did not stand still, but drew the tide later every day. She had been used to emerging after ber siesta at 4 o'clock, but when the tide served so as to enable them to get to Lovers' rock at that hour she did not emerge till the evening meal. This threw him into a fever which only rendered him more beside himself. Just before dusk she came out on the plazza, becomingly dressed, and he asked her to wall down on the beach. She hesitatingly consented, and he led the way to the tongue of sand over which they might go to Lovers' rock. Now that it was possible to go there she demurred "She has grown coy," he said to him self. "I must be bold. A woman likes to be carried, not led." He seized her hand and drew her, struggling faintly, where he wanted her to go. Tiptoelag over the wet spots, they gained the rock, climbed it and stood on the sum

The air was still, the stars were com ing out overhead, the waves rolled in gently breaking on the beach. She did not seem to be thinking of the ocean or the sky. Her eyes wandered abou aged. Surely she was under the influence of that singular feminine feeling that was to be expected with a lover on Lovers' rock. He poured forth his sail on the horizon. When the sun tale of love.

She did not fall on his shoulder. She covered her face with her hands and "I am so sorry. Four days ago I was on this rock with a man." He turned away crushed, then faced Barre Granite Purchasing Agency, her and asked:

"At what hour of the day or night did you come here?" "It was a week ago. He came up ple on Lovers' rock who have walked from the city at night on the 10 o'clock "Well, mum," he replied, "if you look at it that way, why not make it a dime and have a real jolly time?"—San week he might hope to get on to Lovers' rock at a time when it would be Lovers' rock. I told him that the hour was not a proper one for a girl to go there with a man. He brutally declared that hours were nothing to him and go I should. He obliged me to go." "And you accepted him?" "What could I do?"

"What could you do? Oh, heavens!"

Boston's Goose Step.

"Did you ever notice that the Boston man steps higher than any other citi-zen!" remarked James Neill, the well known Salt Lake mining man, as he settled himself more comfortably in an armehair in the Palace Hotel palm garden. "It's a fact. I've acquired that important piece of intelligence by reason of close research and observation. I don't know the reason for it unless, as I suspect, it is directly attributable to his good manners. You know the sidewalks in Boston are insufferably narrow, and the well-mannered Boston citizen frequently finds himself walking ou in the street in order that women may not be jostled and discommoded. The constant practice of stepping over cob-bles, protruding roots of trees and car tracks educates the Boston man to step higher than the citizen who is used t sidewalks, and if you'll study the matter closely, as I have done, you can pick a Boston man out of any crowd merely by noticing how he picks up his feet. When I have nothing else to do I sit here in the palm garden and pick the Boston men out of the passing throng."
